2016 Brazilian Grand Prix - Saturday

Interlagos

Sao Paulo, 12.11.2016, 20:35 Time

USPA NEWS - Fractions of a second separate the Silver Arrows in São Paulo! Lewis today took his 60th career pole position "" his second at the Autódromo José Carlos Pace and 11th of the 2016 season so far. Nico completed a 13th Silver Arrows front row lockout of the season in P2.

Lewis Hamilton -

It's been feeling great all weekend. Every session today I was up front and able to maintain that position, finding a little bit more each time I went out. So, I'm really, really happy with it. I don't know how obvious it is watching at home but, with this being one of the shortest circuits on the calendar, it's somewhere that even the smallest margin can make a huge difference and it's usually close out there. It's a really tricky track to get right.

For example, all weekend my first sector times were quite good but then I never really got it together through there in qualifying. When you have such a short lap, getting your tyres ready for the first flying lap is often difficult, so you can go into the first three corners without them being fully up to temperature yet. It's quite bumpy in places and the middle sector puts a lot of heat through the tyres, so overall it's definitely a tough circuit. It's all about having a good balance of patience and not being too greedy in some places. I've felt strong in every aspect and in all conditions throughout this weekend, so I'll prepare the best way I can for tomorrow and see how it goes from there. I'm ready.

Nico Rosberg -

That was a pretty intense qualifying out there today. I was able to improve my times from lap to lap which felt good and it was all going very well. I found a good balance, a good rhythm" a good everything, really. Then, on my last run I was able to improve again "" but at the end Lewis was just that little bit quicker. But that's the way it is and there is still a lot to play for tomorrow. To win the race is definitely still possible from this position. The start is always a possibility and also with strategy it could be interesting tomorrow. I also had a good long run this morning, so I am looking forward to a great race in front of this fantastic crowd.

Toto Wolff, Head of Mercedes-Benz Motorsport -

What a fantastic qualifying session with everything coming down to the final lap between the two boys. Lewis did a great lap and was quickest in every part of qualifying "" but Nico was actually a few hundredths ahead on his final lap until Turn 12, where he couldn't get on the throttle early enough and lost the advantage up the hill.

It was just a really tight session with both drivers on the limit and slugging it out on track, just like it should be. Looking ahead to the race, the weather forecast looks uncertain and it will be down to our drivers to make the most of their opportunities. Our job is to make sure that we don't let them down. The other positive from today was a surprisingly good gap to the teams behind "" bigger than we have seen recently. But that can easily change in different circumstances during the race.

Paddy Lowe, Executive Director (Technical) -

Very interesting conditions out there today "" although not as bad as they might have been. We saw some very light drizzle drifting in every five to ten minutes but fortunately never enough to significantly slow the track. So, in the event we ran a straightforward programme "" opting to head out early in each session to ensure we got our laps in while the track was still dry.

The Q3 finale between our two drivers was incredibly close and very exciting to watch. Nico was actually slightly up coming into the last corner but just lost a fraction in those final moments, with Lewis holding on to a very strong pole position. Congratulations to them both on what was a really spectacular performance to lock out the front row. The stage is set for a closely fought battle tomorrow, in what has been a tightly contested title battle all season so far. We look forward to seeing how the latest chapter in that story unfolds tomorrow.
